Martial law has been declared at Eagle, West Virginia.

The Carson Guard shooting team will leave for San Francisco Tuesday night.

John Wood the nurseryman left for San Francisco last night to take in the Fair.

Miss M. Cavanaugh and Master John Mayhugh left for a visit to the Fair last night.

W. E. F. Deal was among the through passengers to Virginia yesterday morning.

Warden Bell and wife returned from their visit to the Midwinter fair yesterday morning.

Corbett knocked out the Courts in Jacksonville in about the same time he knocked out Mitchell.

Mrs. C. T. Bender and daughter of Reno arrived in Carson yesterday morning and departed on the evening's train.

Attention is called to the change in the advertisement of Thaxter's drug store. That is now the headquarters for seeds.

The Oroville and Woodland teams are already crawling. They claim their targets have been out of order and they were unable to practice.

Mrs. Ella Coleman (nee Edwards) arrived in Carson yesterday morning from Southern California on a visit to her brother, Dwight Edwards, and family.

Now that two of the APPEAL composers are learning to play the violin of Geo. Lamy, Peter Jackson, the office cat, refuses to sleep in the building.

Now that Corbett has been acquitted of "maltreating, beating and bruising one Charles Mitchell," it will naturally be in order for Jimmie to hand back that purse to the Duval Club.

Harris, the barber, is using a lotion for the scalp which not only eradicates every trace of dandruff, but makes the scalp healthy, stops itching and imparts a refreshing coolness.

Judging by the way certain papers are pitching into the Midwinter Appeal, Tidings thinks Sam Davis must be making a howling success of his '49 mining camp newspaper.—Mason Valley Tidings.

Our March lamb while being sheared sprinkled its snowy fleece over the country from 11 p. m. night before last until early morning yesterday until it had piled up "the beautiful" to the amount of a couple of inches.

In an open letter to the public Governor Colcord calls upon the State Agricultural Society to forego a State Fair this year, and allow the money to be spent on Nevada's exhibit at the Mid-Winter Fair. He further says:

"It appears to me impossible to elect a Legislature that would not willingly make an appropriation to cover the outlay, as I believe the benefit accruing to the State cannot be overestimated."

Miner Held.

As a result of the preliminary examination of Miner and Dunlap, accused of robbing the express car recently, Dunlap was discharged and Miner held on $5000 bonds furnished by Messrs. Fultone and Bath, to appear before the next Grand Jury.

It is claimed that Miner was held on the evidence of Jack Furong, who testified that he found a pistol which he identified as Miner's in a cabin near Bath's ranch. Other evidence was introduced showing that all the pistols Miner ever owned were what is known as blue steel and not nickel plated as was the one found. A good many people regard the holding of Miner a queer proceeding when four reputable witnesses positively swear that he was in the house at the time of the robbery.

A Ten Thousand Libel Suit.

We are informed that A Garard has begun suit against D. L. Sayre, editor of the Mason Valley Tidings, for $10,000 damages. Some two months ago Sayre published an article referring to Mr. Garard as the man who sold out his employers in the Qu en-Po-guan suit, wherein Garard was an important witness.—Walker Lake Bulletin.

Just ponder over it, a Nevada editor being sued for $10,000.

FROM THE SILVER STATE.

Nevada's Elaborate Display at the Exposition.

In a few days the last exhibit in the Nevada State building will be installed and visitors will be able to inspect one of the finest displays at the exposition. The Silver State deserves a great deal of credit for the splendid part it displays at the Fair. It has secured a representation in the City of Palms for two reasons. It wishes to show the world that it is something very much more than a domain of sagebrush and silver mines, and it wishes to show the people of California that it is now a formidable competitor in many a field in which the Golden State claims pre-eminence.

The Nevada building is a quaintly beautiful structure constructed in the Mexican Spanish style. It is located in the extreme northwestern part of the grounds. The road leading to it is a broad winding one shadowed by high trees. At night it is brilliantly lighted by arc electric lamps. A more picturesque location could not have been chosen, and it has already become a favorite spot for visitors, who can look from the windows of the building out upon the green lawns of the park and the broad expanse of the ocean.

The building is 60 feet long and 50 feet wide. Its first floor is devoted to the display of agricultural products. It is here that the visitors will meet surprise after surprise. Nevada has an agriculture display which merits the closest attention of Californian farmers. In the building are over forty varieties of apples. They are excellent in quality and the claim is made for them that they are better than any cultivated in California or Oregon.

On the walls of the building a number of black silver-bound frames are hung. Each contains several different kinds of grain artistically arranged. In the entire collection there are over 100 different varieties, every one of which is profitably cultivated in the Silver State. Nevada also claims in her potatoes a superior quality to those grown in California. In the building there are over 25 varieties. Vegetables of all sorts are raised to advantage in the State and every variety is on exhibition.

In the very center of the building is a display which no visitor is allowed to overlook. It is of honey. The bees which made it were fed on alfalfa. This exhibit is similar to that which won a premium at the Columbian Exposition. The exhibit of butter is an unusually elaborate one. The creameries of Douglas county are known all over the Coast, and those who visit the Nevada building will see what these creameries can do when at their best. Farmers will be interested to know that the first, second and third crops of alfalfa are also exhibited in the State building.

There is practically no agricultural product exhibited by Nevada which is not the result of irrigation. The fact is particularly pressed by the managers upon all visitors who enter the building. The irrigation system is one which is being improved constantly.

A very prominent place has been given to the exhibit of flour which was awarded a gold medal at the Chicago Exposition. Here and there in the building are exhibits of salt, granite and mineral products of great commercial value. Hay of different varieties, flax, corn, wheat, barley, oats and scores of other grains are also shown.

There are several pyramids of apples and preserved fruits, which, unlike all others at the Exposition are not sulphurized.

The building is daintily decorated in white and gold, long streamers and bands being so arranged as to form a dome within the structure. Every beam and column is hidden by grains neatly arranged. Silver plays an important part in the adornment and gives a distinctive coloring to the whole.

The State University of Nevada has made an interesting display showing the result of a chemical analysis of different substances. Several of the leading products of the State have been chosen and the constituent parts of each are displayed in bottles. Among the products analyzed are alfalfa, cheese, whey, buttermilk, milk, butter, skimmed milk, cream and whole milk.

The gallery of the building is filled with a variety of exhibits. There are scenes of photographs showing scenes in different parts of the State. A number of ruined places interesting to travelers are also shown. Minerals occupy a leading and central place. There are gold and silver ores, lime rock, nickel, aluminum, sulphur and building stones. Three months ago coal was discovered in the State and a large quantity is on exhibition. The samples are from Columbus and Esmeralda counties. Some of the big specimens are found only thirty feet from the surface.

A special room has been constructed for the exhibition of needle work by the women of Nevada. The exhibit has not yet arrived, but it promises to be one of unusual excellence.

The Nevada building will be officially opened on March 22nd, the day assigned in honor of the State. The exhibit will be ready weeks before that day, but it has been deemed best to postpone the official opening until the great crowd from the Silver State will arrive. It is expected that the excursionists will number thousands of people.

Governor Colcord and his staff will be here and so will every member of the State Board of Agriculture, under whose direction the display has been made. Those in charge of the building are J. A. Yerington, managing director; C. H. Stoddard, Secretary; directors—W. E. Sharon, C. H. Stoddard, P. H. Mulcahy, W. T. Smith and J. A. Yerington.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Miners Killed.

Allentown, Pa., March 2.—The roof of a tunnel in Williams & Son's quarry at Williamstown caved in this morning while seven men were at work in it. Rescuers at once started to remove the debris and soon succeeded in reaching one of the men—William R. Jones—who was taken out in such a badly injured condition that there is little hope of his recovery.

One of the other men, a man named Ramaley, is not yet dead, as he has been able to make himself heard by the rescuers. None of the others make any sign, being crushed under hundreds of tons of rock.

LATER.—Ramaley was dug out of the debris in the tunnel more dead than alive. He knew nothing of the others' fate. Samuel Kreitz was found crushed to death. These two men were found nearest the mouth of the tunnel.

A Revolting Tragedy.

Eugene, Or., March 2.—A revolting tragedy occurred here late last night. Albert Moss, a youth of twenty years, in a frenzy of rage, attempted to assassinate the entire Coleman family. After shooting and killing one woman, badly injuring another and fatally wounding an old man, the young maniac sent a bullet through his own heart and died. Young Moss, it appears, had a bitter quarrel with his father over some family matter. In the heat of his passion he learned that the Colemans were in sympathy with his father in the trouble. The youth purchased a revolver and went direct to the Coleman residence, with the above result.
